'Why single out Borra'

All Comelec execs must be charged -Pimentel

By TJ Bargarin, Norman Bercielos and Jerome Aring

WHY NOT ALL TOP OFFICIALS of the Commission on Elections? Why single out one man?

Questions were raised yesterday as to why the Office of the Ombudsman was not going after all the officials of the Comelec, including Chair Benjamin Abalos, involved in the scandal-plagued May 14 election. Senator Raul Roco, who is the Ombudsman's representative to the Commission, responded to the Ombudsman's recommendation to impeach Commissioner Benjamin Abalos was a good first step toward cracking the tough nut of this complicated case.

"It's better than nothing," he said in an interview. But he stressed that the investigation should not stop at Abalos' level but cover all the Comelec officials who had approved the award of the P1.5-billion contract to a May 14 election.

"We saw that only Borra should be singled out. The contract was approved by the entire Comelec. If there is something wrong with the contract—[and] there is—then all the members of the Commission should be held liable for it," Pimentel said.

He added: "All those who participated in the contract should be charged, including Abalos. They should become the contract, not only on Borra's side."

"Otherwise, it would appear he's being made a sacrificial lamb."

House Minority Leader Francis Bordas said he and his colleagues were ready to impeach Borra but that he saw no reason why Abalos et al. should be left out.

Bordas said the minority had asked the Ombudsman to explore the possibility of an case.

"That is the reason we asked for documentation. To find the reason for singling [Borra] out," he said. "As far as I know, all decisions related to this [case] were collegial, and there is no reason why the

Pacquiao: This is gift for Filipinos

By Francis Ochoa

THIS IS HIS CHOSEN STAGE. THIS IS his preferred audience—his adoring public. And almost everybody expects Manny Pacquiao to put on a show his people will talk about for a long, long while.

"He's going to perform for his people," said master promoter Bob Arum.

Pacquiao, the Filipino boxing icon elevated to national hero status hereabouts, takes on Mexican challenger Oscar "Chacho" Larios at around midnight to 1 in a super featherweight bout that holds more significance than just the "Pacman" defense of its illustrious title.

This is the last the 27-year-old superstar from General Santos has fought here to stage. A fight against an opponent with legitimate credentials at the historic Ateneo Coliseum, a gift to country that has seen in him a rebalancing dimension from its current political and economic turmoil.

"This is for all the countrymen who all ways supported and cheered for me," said Pacquiao in Thursday's press conference, the last time the ring sensation spoke to the media.

Pacquiao will earn $1 million for the fight.

The Pacquiao-Larios tilt, scheduled for 12 rounds, is the centerpiece of a 10-day card dubbed Mano-A-Mano Filipino Contender Mexico. The bell for the opening bout rings at 5 a.m.

Road told sponsors Thursday that there was "no future [for Pacquiao]."

"Pacquiao is a dangerous fighter for the first four or five rounds," said Rafael Mendez, the manager of Mexican Contender "Chacho" Larios, who the Filipino boxing superstar meets today at the Ateneo Coliseum. "After that, he slows down."

As far as Mendez is concerned, the best chance is for Larios to "control the

AMRSWP BIENNIAL CONVENTION June 26 - 29, 2006 Capuchin Retreat Center - Lipa City, Batangas CONCLUDING STATEMENT OUR HEARTS CRY OUT!

Gathered together for the Sixth Biennial Convention of the Association of Major Religious Superiors of Women in the Philippines (AMRSWP), we, the General Leaders of 154 women religious congregations of the Philippines, together with our Mission Partners, heard A RENewed CALL TO PROMOTE THE SPIRITUALITY amid the long history of our faith in our society. As we share in the Passion of Christ for wounded humanity, we reflect on our situation and cry out with Jeremiah:

(Rt. my suffering, my suffering!
How I weep!)
Oh, the wrath of my heart!
My heart moans within me,
I cannot be silent:
For
Abandon overtook my heart,
For all the land has been ravaged.
(Jeremiah, 4, 19-26)

WE ARE HORRIFIED

at the all too real persecution of the President that is still rampant in many parts of the country and will surely give rise to more violations of human rights.

WE ARE ENRAGED

at the unabated civic judicial killings of peasants, workers, Church people, journalists, lawyers, activists, especially the 71 women among them.

WE ARE SADDENED

by the continuous violence perpetrated against women and children and single out in this moment the rape of Narda in Manila.

We express our support to Narda, her family and lawyers in their legal struggle to obtain justice for this heinous crime.

WE LAMENT

the women rape of our land in the 21 mining sites prioritized by the administration's Mining Re-orientation Program and the social sufferings of thousands of displaced families, farmers and indigenous people driven away by their projects from their homes and places of livelihood. The said government will surely come up with the wrong policy to address the problem.

We cry out for the destructive legal suits, mining projects, and the mining policy for the support of the Mining Act of 1995, and urge an enactment of an alternative policy that promotes corporate and people ownership as well as indigenous human rights.

We protest against all activities that further displace and are concerned.

WE ARE INDIGNANT

at the desecration and misappropriation in which the One Church is being treated as an instrument of the Commission and weakening the concept of people's initiative - all for the preparation of those in power.

We protest for the violation of all democratic principles and the violation of the rights of the people to protect the civil liberties of citizens, to defend the government that binds the people of the Philippines to the United Nations.

We call for an effective and sustainable rule of law. We call for an effective change in the law. We urge people to be vigilant in opposing the law designed for legal processes and genuine people participation.

WE ARE GRIEVED

by the ruthless and ruthless destruction of the houses of other poor communities in the name of the development and development. We demand the land commission, the ineffective land commission and other laws that cause forced migration of the rural poor to the cities.

We protest for the violation of all democratic principles and the violation of the rights of the people to protect the civil liberties of citizens, to defend the government that binds the people of the Philippines to the United Nations.

As we move, we call on those in authority to put an end to the sufferings of our people by immediate and effective action.

To other Sisters and our Partners, we urge a concrete living out of our prophetic calling:

by denouncing, exposing and denouncing all forms of abuses and violations of human rights;

by relentlessly watching, pursuing and defending truth; and by conducting peace-building missions.

We condemn and condemn the Good News by our vigilance and perseverance in our solidarity with our people in the struggle for justice as we journey together towards the

Too many tongues ...

That was when the chairman stepped in the middle of her speech, trying to grasp for the right word.

All because she had been talking in two other tongues, she said.

Meeting with the Filipino community at the Madrid Subdivision of Cebu Engineering-Viking Makars, in a packed hotel and dark hall filled in Filipino about the prospects of more jobs in Spain.

Finally, she stepped out and turned to the Filipino men and women seated behind her to ask about a similar health-related job.

Quick to her feet, ongoing Labor Secretary Patricia Torres spoke out the words "health care."

Ms. Torres broke into a laugh, held her hand with both hands and said, "This must be so in doing language. It began in case of the many languages."

Prayed by hosts

Ms. Arroyo had been praised by the Spanish and fellow Filipinos here for the way she addressed the Spanish Congress, City Hall officials and lawmakers in their Spanish on their site.

During her talk before the Filipino community, the President gave out medals to both Spanish and Filipino promoting Philippine culture and tourism.

The said that at her meeting with Spanish President Jose Luis Rodriguez Zapatero in the Plaza de la Hispanidad, she had asked them if Filipino is allowed to have their own's language in the Philippine recognition.

King and queen

Also on Friday, the Arroyo received a call from former President Jose Maria Arroyo of the Philippines where she was invited, visited a Filipino exhibit at the Casino Cultural de Madrid, Spain, and had lunch with King Juan Carlos I and Queen Sofia at the Palacio Real de Madrid.

Later in the day she was invited to the commemoration of the 100th anniversary of the Philippine Revolution in the Plaza de la Independencia.

Fighting terror

She was to have again for Manila at 11:30 on Saturday and is to arrive in Manila Sunday morning.

Defence Secretary Arroyo said that during the Spanish war, the Philippines and Spain signed an agreement on communication and exchange of information and exchange of military and military police officials. (Story on Page B1)

Both countries have been victims of terror attacks. Terrorism in 2004 bombed twice in Spain in Madrid, killing nearly 200 people and wounding about 1,800.

Arroyo said the agreement would also serve as exchange of information on disaster control.

A visit to Camp Crame ...

Progress

Police have been opening up the headquarters in Quezon City. The plan is to build a park in front of the main building, improve the sidewalk around the area.

Heroes live

Work began last year, when a brick bridge passed on the lighted area in front of NPO, the site of the NPO Heritage Park.

The old, historic monument, which was the heart of the site, was a great center, was moved to the Heritage Park.

In line of the monument, a bronze base was constructed in front of the monument, which would have two miniature bridges and a fountain. Last week, workers finished building the bridge and paving the area.

When completed, the Heritage Park will showcase a built-in monument on which the names of fallen soldiers will be inscribed. The monument will also showcase the accomplishments of the police force and policemen in its history beginning in 1901.

Cost

According to official and local sources, Heritage Park would cost P15.5 million, while the sidewalk would cost P1.5 million.

The money came from savings and trust receipts, sources added. Some sources are concerned about the police through its construction.

Visitors to the park mentioned by the (Inquirer) said they were only too glad to walk on the new pavement and to see on the bridge into the river.

There were other opinions about the park.

It's a park

Some police officers, speaking at a meeting of the police, said that Camp Crame was not a park, where civilians could go and socialize.

The money spent on the park could have been used to better the Very little of the resources had been put aside for the camp, the meeting official said.

Another official mentioned that because money was scarce, the construction work at the camp was done in phases.

The meeting official said the new police station would be the legacy of Lumbao's administration, whose overriding motivation has been in "bringing back the dignity of the PNP."

Repair of toilets

The Headquarters Support Service, which manages Camp Crame, said it also recommended the construction of a second police station and a Camp Maintenance and Services Unit office, which would cost P10 million and P12.5 million, respectively, and the repair of toilets, which would cost P1 million.

These long-term projects, however, have yet to be approved, the PNP said.

others should be treated separately."

The Commission's statement Friday is just ahead of a resolution containing factual findings that the House could use to initiate its post-election proceedings against Borra.

In said Andueza and the other officials were still under investigation.

Statement also suggested that the Commission has already charged against Borra in connection with the Sangguniang bayan voting through the independent process.

"I don't think it is ethical for members of the Commission to believe that, using its prerogative, commissioners can be criminally charged directly by the Commission before the Sangguniang bayan," he said, arguing that the commissioners were not in the league of the prosecutable officials like the President and the Chief Justice.

But, Raulito Biazon agreed with Pi's second view. "Importance does not mean political protection. The best thing to do is file criminal charges, if indeed the charges are true."

Pi himself added that if Commission intervention-Garcera wanted to "take a little collaborative approach," the should file criminal charges with the Sangguniang bayan against Comelec officials found liable for the deal.

The Supreme Court looked the deal over and a half year ago on grounds that the Commission did not give due notice to the House. The House then filed a motion for reconsideration and another petition for the writ of habeas corpus to the Supreme Court.

Apur from Andueza and Borra, retired Commission Subsecretary Francisco, Raulito Jarama, Ralph Lantada and Melvin Tadias, and current Commission Executive Director Juanito A. Biazon approved the statement on April 15, 2005.

Two state witnesses

Presented also and members of the Commission Subsecretary Francisco, Raulito Jarama, Ralph Lantada and Melvin Tadias, and current Commission Executive Director Juanito A. Biazon approved the statement on April 15, 2005.

"My suggestion is that it is not only the state and the state witnesses," he said, adding that it is not only the state and the state witnesses but also the state and the state witnesses.

The BAC was headed by Eduardo Mapa, its members included Congressmen Jose Ballesteros Jr., Camarines Sur, Senate Minority and Carlos de Guzman.

The Commission had and Borra was being cited for allowing the BAC to declare the Mapa Public Commission eligible to take part in the bidding process, allowing material donations from the bidding companies, and re-evaluating the BAC that the award be given to the maximum bidder in violation of the anti-corruption law.

Complaints against Borra and Andueza were filed by the Commission's independent process.

Borra is also under investigation for the award of a contract to the BAC.

Culpability

Arguing Legarda, the main complainant in the Mapa Public deal, also stated Andueza is liable for the Commission's award of the deal.

"Borra and all the other commissioners who signed the deal are culpable," Andueza has been defending and defending the legitimacy of the contract in so many forms," said Legarda, president of the Commission's Subsecretary Francisco and the Commission's Executive Director Juanito A. Biazon.

Like Pi and Biazon, Legarda said the accused commissioners could still be charged with graft.

Legarda also questioned why the members of the BAC were only ordered dismissed by the Commission.

Legarda pointed out that the high court had given the Commission "a very long time to conduct its investigation."

"Question here is to speed up the process so that the Commission can file its case and not only wait for a period of time," he said.

The House Majority Leader Prospero Nograles said the Commission was opening another process.

"I think the Commission was empowered to open a case under the law in connection with the Mapa Public deal of June 30," he said.

Legarda said it was not only the deal of the Mapa Public deal was indeed a political deal, but also the deal.

"I have received the findings," he said, arguing, who also stated the House was moving on, and that according to present law, the chamber would wait for a court decision and at least one commission who would receive the complaint.

The House Majority Leader-Garcera stated that the 2007 rules could be affected if the post-election proceedings were initiated against Borra and possibly other Commission officials.

He stated that the House might not look kindly on a post body whose actions would be divided between the House and the 2007 elections and the independence of its own will, with a report from the House.

A legacy of T'boli brass casting, basketry

By Marianne Pineda
Contributor

IT IS RATHER A VERY COMPLEX and physical process, using the earth, water and fire."

This was how T'boli craftsman Antonio Sarmiento described to the reporter his ancient art and living tradition that he is passing on to his son.

Recently, Sarmiento taught his 15-year-old son, Antonio Jr., the art of brass casting from him. He is the only one in the family who learned brass casting from his father.

Brass casting has been part of the T'boli tradition for many generations. The product has been used to adorn native houses and more, and even jewelry.

"The T'bolis were the first to make jewelry in Mindanao. During military days, they can be seen wearing ornate sets of beaded necklaces, multiple brass bangles, brass or beaded dangling earrings," according to a fact sheet prepared by the National Commission on Indigenous Peoples (NCIP).

"Both the men and women wear beaded rings and beaded necklaces," it said.

Artistic wealth

The NCIP notes that the T'boli people have been known for their wealth in crafts. Living in the mountainous region of Zamboanga, Davao Oriental and Sultan Kudarat provinces, they produce brass figures of humans and animals, bells and metal boxes.

Working with charcoal, wood and iron plates, painted clay, lacquer, and brass, they make things to wear in their place.

Another elegant T'boli work of art is the baki, which is made of beaded brass bells joined together to form the center belt that the people use in dancing and other community rites. The baki producers avoid dancing by the river.

The provincial government has recognized the growing significance of the T'boli crafts. During the past five years, it has made efforts to support the traditional skills in brass casting, basketry, weaving, and beading making through its Indigenous Peoples Development Program (IPDP).

On June 20, the first batch of 20 student graduates of brass casting and 10 other students of beading making graduated after completing a month-long training in the NCIP's School of Living Traditions (SOLT). The nine teachers of the students trained by the Lumbanga Super were exhibited during the commemorative event.

Preserving culture

"The main purpose of the SOLT program is to preserve our culture," said program director Maribel Banaag. "Until now, T'boli children today do not know how to do the T'boli way."

"Given adequate time and training, we can have more skilled T'bolis and eventually to increase in production," Banaag said.

Through the Indigenous Peoples Culture and Traditional Arts Research, the IPDP aims to preserve the traditional skills and cultural practices which were handed down to younger generations by word of mouth.

The T'boli community is the second largest group of indigenous people in Zamboanga, after the Malays. They live in the village of T'boli in Zamboanga and in nearby Zamboanga del Norte.

T'boli communities are also found in several barangays of Marikina, near the boundary of Manila, Cavite. Among the T'bolis, the most famous of T'bolis and Lumbanga.

Antonio Banaag, president of the T'boli Association, provided more details on the celebration of "T'boli Day" in the region. He said the event will give visitors the chance to see the T'boli culture in detail.

"There is no opportunity to market these products. Most of them will be sold in big volumes where we produce them," Banaag said.

"I-WITNESS," GMA 7's (ABS) night documentary program, was suspended for two weeks by the Movie and Television Review and Classification Board (MTRCB) because of "violations" committed by the episode "Lakayo, Hindi ko Bawala," aired on May 22.

These are the world's most, egg fly, common monarch, orange, tiger, yellow, and red, and have wing and checked redline tail.

Each of these species has its own host plant that the caterpillars consume.

"It has a successful butterfly business, you don't have a large plantation of the host plant. The caterpillars are in the garden. Otherwise you have to buy commercial breed, etc." Maricao says.

MANILA—JULY 2 (PNA)—A CHARMING DELICIOUS orange-brown of triangle-shaped paper containing common egg fly butterfly species from Maricao. The butterfly, with black wings and large blue and white spots, were prominently placed on a banana. The butterfly house is to be brought to the public this day in the City will all the "Charm" says.

Getting these butterflies from the island province on the other side of Luzon is only one of the five kinds of the butterfly house.

Charm's employee, Maricao Maricao, says one should be willing to shell out from P500,000 to P1 million to get hundreds of butterfly house park.

Believing their relative childhood memory of having butterfly house on one's land is indeed expensive, says Maricao, who is engaged in establishing butterfly parks all over the country.

He owns the butterfly house farm in the Bataan Regional Butterfly House near San Antonio 1 in the island region. He manages the Camp John Day butterfly sanctuary in Baguio City and is now building them in the City. "Charm" Maricao's butterfly house is the general "Bataan" compound here.

Maricao says the butterfly house is a major industry used for establishing his units in building butterfly farms.

"Butterfly house are very popular in the city and I hope the Philippines would catch up," he says.

Maricao's butterfly house has received about 55 percent of the country's butterfly and paper exports.

Many of them are brought to the butterfly house in England, Spain, the Netherlands and the United States, Maricao says.

But the local demand is equally important, he adds.

Other than the butterfly house, he says he also supplies butterfly in wedding receptions.

"We don't know if there has been something to do with it but releasing butterflies instead of doves has become the trend now. It all starts with the wedding of (actor) Juanito Cruz and Gine Mancia," he says.

The favorite butterfly species released by couples and their guests at the wedding, Maricao says is woodhouse (P10).

A good thing about butterfly is that the dead don't go to waste. Maricao would have been buried individually in his garden.

Maricao is an environmental engineer affiliated with the P10 House Group in 2005, when he started upon an article on the butterfly house of Maricao in a newspaper magazine.

He moved on to the butterfly industry and decided to work in it as a butterfly house.

He says the Camp John Day butterfly house, which charges P40 per person, is the most innovative, followed by the Bataan Regional

Furniture shop offers anniversary sale

AMICA storage and vegetable accessories

CANGLING'S DEM made of rubber glass

TO CELEBRATE ITS THIRD year and as a way of saying thank you to loyal patrons, Anna Marie Home has an ongoing anniversary sale with items at attractive prices.

Unlike other stores that stick to only one design concept, the place is a showcase of the owner's own eclectic yet very useful ideas.

"I'm not just fixed of matching everything to the last detail," Anna explains. "My wife could have as many as 50 throw pillows with no two pieces alike. My table could be an antique glass topped polished wood and my stools could be a mix of Philippine pottery figurines, chopsticks from China and Bangkok items."

She also illustrates the concept of repurposing by having a single piece serve many functions. A tall, thin cabinet can be used to keep files in the study or as a place to store lunch baskets anywhere in the house, while a storage cabinet with sliding glass doors conceals the television or a TV set.

"One special feature can lend an illusion of magnificence to a small space," says Anna.

In Anna Marie Home, Philippine style rules resolutely mixed in with a subtle of roughness trend. A Chinese emperor's chair serves as a spot across a console table from Bangkok. High back chairs give way to low-stump ones at the head of the dining table.

Through most of Anna Marie Home's furniture rooms of Chinese antiques and reproductions, displays also include items from India, Myanmar, Thailand, Indonesia, Vietnam, Cambodia, Australia and the Philippines.

The store also offers furniture accessories, cushions, dining tables, furniture accessories (baskets, stools, benches, side tables), home decor, home accessories, soft furnishings (pillows, throw pillows, colorful tablecloths, area rugs, lamp shades) and gifts.

Anna Marie Home is located on the second level, Agate Center, Planet Street, In-A-Village, Makati. Call 877-0010, 877-0011 or visit www.annamarihome.com.

Filipiniana exhibit opens in Spain

APRIL 1982 DOK Joseph Bernardo and Sarah Labado

THE BACK AFTER A VISIT, and much-needed vacation, thanks to Qatar Airways. I had a ticket that was about to expire on 11 June from Cebu to Cebu, and across Madrid.

It is the first exhibition ever for Cebuano to go to Spain, with just one stop to change planes in Cebu's capital, Iloilo.

On the way back, it is the same procedure: you check in your luggage at the way from Madrid to Cebu. There's just one catch: as 11-hour wait for the plane to Cebu. These days, for Manila only have a five-hour wait.

What else in Cebu for 10 hours? You can take an evening tour of the downtown. You may go shopping in the night and see the historic center, which is fabulous. Once, we made a circle to an animal farm. The place up with animals was incredible, and we saw the coral side.

The time, though, I decided to postpone to the Delta Market Hotel. It is perfect as to

While in Spain, I looked up friends and relatives in Madrid, Zaragoza, Valencia, Bilbao, and Zamora. In Madrid, I saw a dramatic, "La Sombra del Fuerte," mounted as an opera, and a colorful tapestry titled "Nostalgia de la Sombra del Fuerte."

A memorable event was the opening of the Filipino exhibit at the Centro Cultural de la Ciudad de Madrid. A large banner with the name of a cultural center with an impressive mural was put. The exhibit was organized by the Philippine Consulate in Madrid and the Philippine Consulate in the Philippines.

After all accommodations, the huge exhibition was more exciting, as were the various restaurants and shops. But you couldn't see I did about and down, and a down Italy phone, and enjoy the movies in the Jose Guadalupe, owner and organizer of the exhibit, went to the Philippines, including the Visayas, last year to gather material. He made a meeting of Amigos de España in Cebu provided over by Amigos de España and accompanying Amigos de España. He and the Sola Sola... Jose also visited members large for a glimpse of Cebuano island, and the municipality of Marikina, one of the prominent focus provinces.

Members of the Expat family make one small in cultural branches like the Davao, the Iloilo, the Cebuano, Manila, Cebuano, Zamora, and other large cities. Jose collected some of them in various forms of the Madrid opening of the exhibit. Personally, it included with writing to Spain, as well.

The spell of Siquijor

Text and photos by Annalyn Ma. Guevarra
Contributor

IN GOLDEN TIMES, SIQUIJOR had an abundance of fables, and these glowed around the town at night. It must have been an eerie and fascinating sight, and the Spaniards called the area Isla de Fuego or Island of Fire.

The Japanese soldiers during World War II were less captured by the island, and they engaged in numerous mining which disrupted the environment. To back up the profiles in Siquijor Mt. Basilan, the Japanese used the mountain to the present only the hermit remained untouched.

The Isla de Fuego had finally become an Island of Fire.

During the post-war era, the national government embarked on a reforestation program, and today Mt. Basilan is a nature park, an ecological destination area of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources.
